Demonstrate Sub-soiling
On Atha Ranch TuesdayFarm Advisor Will Meet
Motorcade of Ranchers to Explain Work of Sowing Alfalfa Fields by Means of New Device

How science combats nature in its untamed moods, and turns a caked, unproductive alfalfa field into a splendid example of what good soil, good cultivation and irrigation can accomplish, will be demonstrated Tuesday afternoon at the Atha ranch near Glendale. Following a previous announcement that he would present a campaign against podified fields, Mr. Armstrong is now ready to announce his first lecture dates. He invites all ranchers to be present.

Last winter was a wet one; the rain came down and dampened the soil of the valley, and more particularly of the region between Glendale and Phoenix.

to a great depth. Some ranchers, not being used to so much precipitation, permitted stock on the land, and the result was that some of the wet fields became podified—that is, the soil was tramped into a sort of macadam, through which the alfalfa grew last summer with great difficulty and no density. It quite lost its color in some places, and the yield was lessened.

For the Tuesday demonstration, Armstrong has secured from Agent B. C. Moses, the use of the Yuba Ball track tractor, which was exhibited at the fair. The engine will draw the sub-soiler during a full ten hour day, on the Atha fields, two miles north and two miles east of Glendale. During the demonstration, a careful record of cost in gasoline and oil and in wages will be kept, so that it can be ascertained just how expensive it is going to be to break up stubborn fields and make them productive as formerly.

At 2:30, the farm advisor will be on the ground, and will accompany the visitors to the field, to explain to them how breaking up the soil benefits the

IS ENTERTAINED BY
HIS FORMER BOYSVisit of Dr. McNair, Head of Michigan
College of Mines

Dr. F. W. McNair, president of the Michigan College of Mines, passed through Phoenix Friday evening en route to Prescott to attend a meeting of the alumni of the college. He returned to Phoenix Sunday night and spent yesterday here as the guest of B. O. Pickard, local mining engineer. K. K. Rountz of the state land department, O. C. Horton, superintendent of surveys in Arizona and California, and A. F. Harter of the city engineer's office, all graduates of the M. C. M. A. trip by automobile through the valley with luncheon and reception at the Arizona club, has arranged for his entertainment.

Dr. McNair is making the trip through Arizona for the sole purpose of visiting his graduates and he reports that he is being royally entertained at every stop. There are nearly 100 M. C. M. graduates in Arizona, and the visit of their popular president, proves the democracy of the institution and the close relationship of the faculty and students.

Dr. McNair goes from here to Los Angeles en route to Utah.

HOLBROOK BLINN IN
"IVORY SNUFF BOX"

Today the Lion theater presents the Wm. A. Brady production "The Ivory Snuff Box," based upon the play of the same name by Frederic Arnold Kommer. Holbrook Blinn has the part of the detective in the service of the French government, and on the day of his marriage, is ordered to recover an ivory snuff box, lost by an ambassador.

The ivory snuff box is not recovered until an exciting series of adventures is encountered, and leaves him speechless and free to resume his interrupted honeymoon.

Mr. Blinn has the support of Alma Delvin and a strong cast and is a photoplay in which thrills abound in plenty. "The Ivory Snuff Box" will be shown today and tomorrow and tonight in Nevada Snuff Night.

The Eternal City at The Arizona. An elaborate pictorialization of Hall Caine's "The Eternal City," in which Viola Allen starred some years ago, opened at the Arizona theater last night. Pauline Frederick is the Donna Roma in the film version, and a beautiful and convincing one. There is no doubt that the almost care has been taken in the setting, and the scenes which were almost without exception taken in Rome, are exceedingly beautiful, particularly one of the gathering in the Coliseum carrying burning torches which flared up against the walls, and brought out with wonderful clearness the majestic beauty of the great arena. Several other Italian scenes are of equal beauty—the Vatican gardens, the Castle of St. Angelo shimmering in the distance, and a sweeping view of the flowing Tiber. The story follows that of the book and the play, with a few slight changes.

At The Plaza. The Plaza played all day yesterday to packed houses, and the manager was complimented a number of times on the way he had remodeled the house, thus making it one of the most up-to-date show houses in the city, and one which will cater to the ladies and the children.

Today that wonderful four reel picture "Conscience," featuring Florence Nelson, Al Holubar and William Welsh, will be shown, together with two good comedy reels, which will undoubtedly please the patrons of this new remodeled house.

Coliseum. Tonight at the Coliseum there will be a new program and an enlarged company. "The Winning Widow" is the new play. Mr. Armstrong has arranged for new scenery and wardrobe. Eighth Wilma will be seen at her best in this play. Ed Williams, the Phoenix girl with the double voice, will be seen playing Polly, the part made famous by Elsie Janis. Chas. Byrne, the husband of the widow is in bad from the beginning to the end. Al Presley and Jerry Eaton each have important parts.

"Passing of the Third Floor Back." "When Jerome read 'Passing of the Third Floor Back' to my wife and myself," says Forbes-Robertson, who makes his farewell appearance in this city at the Elks theater on Friday and Saturday evening, "I was decided. We did not think that it would be a success, but even if it ran only five or six weeks, we felt that the ideal, the opinion of the play should be given to the public."

"Passing of the Third Floor Back" without any particular situations, moving scenes or marked climaxes as they are generally understood, but nevertheless it has seemed to seize the fancy of an enormous public.

The central character, Passerby, symbolizes the spirit of unselfish interest in fellow mankind. In this character Jerome has presented an unusual and daring figure, but it stands out as one of the most notable portraits the stage has seen in this generation.

Lamara Theater. In every conceivable way the William Fox production of "Carmen," now running at the Lamara theater, marks an era in motion pictures. It has no prototype either in sumptuous magnificence, scenic equipment, properties, cast, costume or extraordinary treatment. It stands single and alone among the achievements of the silent stage. Never before in history of motion pictures was such exacting painstaking care, such accumulated experience, and such an outlay of money and time bestowed on a movie picture creation. Theda Bara distinguishes herself anew in the role
